Information about the National Accreditation Program

The NAP recognizes education and training offerings that meet the Council’s Standards for Accreditation, which were created with the assistance of CSA Standards and with significant input from supply chain stakeholders.

The rigorous standards are based on national and international best practices and principles, and include requirements for course/program needs assessment, design, development, delivery, and student evaluation. To be accredited, a course or program must meet all of the standards. It is important to note that education providers themselves are not accredited; it is specific programs or individual courses that are accredited.

Post-secondary institutions, associations and private training schools are eligible to submit their programs and courses for review.

Applications are reviewed four times a year. The deadline for submission in the next round is February 1, 2018. Subsequent deadlines are every three months thereafter. Applications are submitted electronically and are reviewed by the Council’s Accreditation Review Panel.

More information about the NAP standards, fees and review process is available on the Council’s website, at www.supplychaincanada.org/en/NAP.

The Canadian Supply Chain Sector Council brings together partners in the sector to develop solutions to the human resource challenges faced by stakeholders. Recognizing the vital role of the supply chain to Canada's economy, the Council is committed to enhancing the sector's ability to attract and retain workers at all levels and across the full range of functions, and to advancing the skills of those workers.
